ONStor asserts commitment to federal market

09 Jun 2008

ONStor has reasserted its efforts to help federal services in the US to meet their networking needs as the total amount of data handled worldwide continues to grow.

The organisation has been added to two distribution contracts which it claims should allow its products to be shipped to any federal government branch in the country.

Senior vice-president of worldwide sales Tom Gallivan says: "ONStor's inclusion in these contracts is critical to our ability to successfully negotiate and win business in the federal government space."

He adds that federal agencies which adopt ONStor's network-attached storage (NAS) solutions may find they are able to cope with data growth in a cost effective manner.

ONStor suggests that its products are ideal for consolidating storage and server usage, reducing the physical space used by a data centre and improving energy efficiency.

The firm previously announced a strategic alliance with Fujitsu Computer Systems to certify its own Bobcat NAS gateway for operation with Fujitsu's ETERNUS4000 and ETERNUS8000 storage systems.
